ABOUT THE MARCH OF DIMES

The March of Dimes began when President Franklin Delano Roosevelt declared an all-out war on polio and mothers marched through their neighborhoods collecting dimes. For more than three generations, March of Dimes researchers, volunteers, educators, outreach workers and advocates have continued to work together to give all babies a fighting chance. Today we continue to lead the effort to help babies be born healthy.

We carry out our mission to improve the health of babies by preventing birth defects, premature birth, and infant mortality through a four-pronged approach of:

- funding research related to basic biology, genetics, premature birth and birth defects,
- providing community services that provide both information resources and direct service,
- educating the public, businesses and health professionals on mission-relevant topics,
- and advocating on issues critical to infant, child and maternal health.
